Catholic School Families to Continue Benefiting from MultiLit Literacy Partnership

16 April 2025 – Catholic School Parents Australia (CSPA) has announced the renewal of its national partnership with leading literacy provider MultiLit, offering families in Catholic schools continued access to the MultiLit leading-edge literacy programs to support their children’s learning through MultiLit’s Literacy Centres.

The renewed collaboration follows a successful first year and will continue to offer families a 50% discount on literacy assessments. The initiative aims to empower parents to actively support their children’s learning with scientifically proven literacy support.

MultiLit (Making Up For Lost Time In Literacy) has 30 years of experience helping children across Australia, New Zealand, and Asia build essential literacy skills through programs grounded in the science of reading.

“This second year signals our ongoing commitment to ensuring Catholic school families can access high-quality literacy resources to support their children’s development,” said CSPA Chair Andrea Obeyesekere.

“With increasing national focus on improving literacy outcomes, this partnership gives families practical tools backed by research and results.”

Andy Russell, General Manager of Literacy Services at MultiLit, said the partnership reflects shared values around family engagement and education.

“CSPA’s work in empowering parents aligns with our belief that family involvement is critical in improving literacy outcomes,” Mr Russell said. “We’re excited to continue providing meaningful support to families across the Catholic education system.”

CSPA represents the parents and carers of more than 800,000 students in Australia’s 1,760 Catholic schools—educating one in five Australian students.
